Page 1  Cleaning House
   Greg Giaccio

Page 2  Citizen Lytle: Up and Running
   Greg Giaccio

Page 3  WXBC: On the Air (Finally)
   Michael Poirier
   Happy Birthday Maxim! [Leon Botstein's Son Max is Born]
   Greg Giaccio
   Meet the Mighty [Administration]

Page 4  Queer+
   EphanGlennColter

Page 5  Confirmation Process Questioned [Supreme Court]
   Jennifer Reck
   Andrew Yoon
   Why Right is Wrong [Clarence Thomas's Nomination to the Supreme Court]
   Matt Apple
   The Beer Column

Page 6  An Abundance of Riches
   Peter M. Boriskin

Page 7  Pinocchio Alive [Review of Robert Coover's novel Pinocchio in Venice]
   Johnathan Miller
   Art to Expand Awareness
   Susan Goedel

Page 8  Blazers Just Warming Up
   Matt Apple
   Women's Tennis On Their Way
   Laurie Curry
   Classifieds and Personals

Page 10  Outlook From the Editor's Sanctum
   Public access: rights and responsibilities
   Kristan Hutchison

Page 11  Nackenoff Deserved Tenure
   Melissa Cahoon
   Who's Silenced Now?
   “Paul Winkler, '92”
   Still More PC Talk
   Neal Brofee
   Addition to Library Article
   Linda Crow

Page 12  Calendar
Cleaning house

by Greg Giacco

The college is in the process of choosing a sub-contractor for the cleaning services. The college has been having economic troubles recently and hopes that this plan will cut costs. So far, the college stands to save at least $50,000 and perhaps more according to Vice President Dimitri Papadimitrou. The sub-contractors can save money through bulk discounts on cleaning supplies and through re-assigning work so that the "structure will be more efficient."

However, John Muir, the vice president of the Service Employees International Union, has doubts.

"The only way they can save money is to pay poverty wages."

-John Muir, vice president of Service Employees International Union which Bard's custodians belong to, doesn't feel that this plan will save money in the long run. "This thing [the plan to hire a subcontractor] will not save them money...the only way they can save money is to pay poverty wages," said Muir.

The idea for hiring a sub-contractor to cut costs in the cleaning service came from other colleges who have done the same thing. The current custodial staff are continued on page 5.

INSDIE

-CitizenLytle
...page 2

-WABC
...page 3

-Clarence Thomas
...page 5

-Board of Trustees
...page 10
Citizen Lytle: Up and running

by Greg Giaccio

Professor Mark Lytle has announced that he will be running as the Democratic candidate for Dutchess County legislator against incumbent, John Kennedy.

"The Republicans point their cannon; it's the Democrats who have to elect theirs," Lytle quipped. As a Democrat against an incumbent in a large Republican county, "campaigning is actually an exercise in futility," he said.

However, the Democratic party in Rhinebeck has had some unprecedented success recently. Not only did David Miller, who was a Bard student at the time, win 10% of the vote as a Democratic write-in candidate against Kennedy, the Democrats have also won two village offices and two town offices. According to Lytle, this is the first time a Democrat has held those offices in Rhinebeck since the turn of the century.

Professor Mark Lytle will be running on the Democratic ticket against Kennedy in November.

For Lytle, the issue in this campaign is Kennedy's voting record. Kennedy has a record of voting against major county expenditures, including funding for Dutchess County Community College.

"A community college is, for many people, their only route to higher education," said Lytle. Lytle believes that the government is there to help those who can't help themselves.

Kennedy, on the other hand, said that, "there's really only one issue...the tax rate, especially the property taxes." With rollback in aid from the state and the current problems with the economy as a whole, Kennedy is worried about forming a comprehensive budget with wide agreement on which programs to cut.

Another major issue in the campaign is the need for an addition on the county jail which is overcrowded. Lytle is afraid to take the cheaper $20 million option since it may require more spending in the future. However, his opponent is likely to go for the cheaper option because of the budget problems and the long-lasting impact on tax-payers.

Kennedy's pro-life stance has been an issue with the Bard College club, the Coalition For Choice, for a long time. The Coalition will be helping Lytle with his campaign. "As a pro-choice activist there is no question that Mark Lytle is the candidate everyone should vote for," said Coalition treasurer, David Rolf.

Another issue that was important to Lytle was that his campaign should show students how important government service is. In fact, Lytle was not going to run in the first place but decided to at the persistent requests of Bard Trustee Jack Honey to "the high morale people once bought to government service."

More house cleaning

continues from page 1

approximately thirty-five people would be given an opportunity to work with the new company, according to Papadimitrou.

The college has not decided on which company to use. Among the possibilities is International Service Systems and Servicemaster. According to Papadimitrou, the decision will be made based on the way the new company treats employees, the amount of money they can save the college and the compatibility with Buildings and Grounds.

Different contractors have expressed concern about their job security and benefits. Papadimitrou said that some benefits would be expected to change. "The contractors would be working for a different company and not the college," he said. "Overall, I think the package will be the same," said Papadimitrou.

Muir said that while some colleges do subcontract contractors, most do not place their workers under the jurisdiction of another company. As Bard will be doing, "it’s not in the best interest of the college, it’s not in the best interest of the employees."

Bennington College issued a contract to Allied Maintenance several years ago when they were in bad financial straits but brought it back in-house after they had saved enough money.

"We had a service contractor that took care of cleaning, security, and maintenance," said Bob Ayers, the director of Bennington's maintenance department. "Using the outside contractor cut the amount of personnel.

According to Ayers, the contractor "did all the dirty work" of cutting personnel and budgets. Once the department was reorganized, the college brought it back in-house.

"I'd say its more efficient in-house," said Ayers who worked under both the college and the subcontractor, "you can get things done pronto of the moment." Under a subcontractor, the college had to pay extra for all the things cleaned or fixed that were not covered by the contract.

Although the subcontractor used by Bennington is not among the known contractors for Bard's contract, many employees are concerned about their job and benefit security.

"I'm sure they're concerned," said Papadimitrou. "[But] I expect that they would trust the college.

Papadimitrou was not sure if the subcontractor would cut personnel or not. However, he did say that "some retirees will not be replaced."

The contractors have a three year union contract which safeguards their current wages. Article 27 of that contract states: "Any

Student Forum Schedule

Friday, September 20 at 7 p.m. in Kline Budget Forum

Tuesday, September 24 at 8 p.m.

Forum to discuss the tenure decision of Dr. Carol Nackenoff. A resolution will be presented calling for an outside evaluation to be considered by the Board of Trustees.

This forum is open to all community members and faculty are encouraged to come and speak. However, only currently enrolled students may vote.

Place and agenda to be announced for forums on

Wednesday, October 23

Wednesday, November 20

Wednesday, December 11

Questions regarding upcoming forums may be addressed to Erin Law, Secretary of the Student Forum via campus mail.
Features

WXBC: On the air (finally)

by Michael Poirier

After sporadic efforts over the last ten years, the Bard radio station named WXBC is entering a new incarnation at 540 on the AM dial. With the hierarchy of Matt Schickele and Alan Heifitz as program directors, Michael Beattie as music director, and Corin See as station manager surrounded by a core of disk jockeys from across campus, the station has begun the new semester determined to become a permanent fixture of Bard College.

This is not the first attempt by students to establish a campus radio station. There were ill-fated efforts during the 1950's and 60's, but it wasn't until the late 70's that WXBC was born, only to fade away slowly by 1982.

Four years ago, interest finally grew enough to try to bring the station back to life. With help from the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, which consisted of advice and experience, a club was formed that began the arduous process of fund-raising. By the fall of 1990, about $12,000 was promised to WXBC. Transmitting equipment had already been ordered and when it was discovered that some of the WXBC money had been replaced into the general fund. The order had to be diminished, and the equipment arrived to be installed this spring.

Buildings and Grounds installed the system for $750, but as See commented, "They should be praised for doing it for us, but we are frustrated now because it doesn't work as well as it should. The system is carrier-current and works as follows: A signal, generated in the studio (located in the basement of Manor House), travels through the phone and electrical lines to the dorms where a transmitter converts it to a 30 watt AM signal. Then the signal passes through a coupler which prevents it from being destroyed by the electrical current."

At this writing, the only dorms which are receiving any signal at all are Manor, Cruger Village, Tewksbury, and Sands House. Conversely, the only dorms not theoretically covered are South Hall, the Old Gym, Stone Row, Feiffer, and Galahgen. The Raves are not hooked up but are not currently receiving. See said, "Most of the locations on campus that are hooked up do not receive a clear or strong signal because of the complex and delicate nature of matching the transmitters and coupling units to building's, as well as the odd wiring present in some locations."

Money garnered from the fall budget will be used to hire an engineer and to bring South Hall, the New Dorms, and Stone Row on line. See commented that while the station needs a lot of money to establish itself fully, a considerably smaller amount of funding will be needed in the future for only maintenance purposes.

The station has been met with enthusiasm by alumni, notably by Richard Greener and Charles Moore, director of radio and television who holds a controlling interest in 23 radio stations, has pledged that he will send WXBC any excess equipment. Moore, who helped get WXBC started back in '77, and now works on "Late Night With David Letterman," has also voiced his support.

Technical mishaps aside, See and his colleagues are encouraged by the large amounts of enthusiasm expressed by many people at the college, whether or not they choose to get involved. Disk jockey schedules are being ironed out now with volunteers working evening hours for periods ranging from an hour to five hours with single or multiple DJ's.

Since the signal is exclusive to the Bard campus, any broadcast is beyond the jurisdiction of the FCC. DJ's bring their own music and are free to speak or to play whatever or however they choose. The station offers an open-air format with absolutely no enforced play lists, and announcers are encouraged to play the songs that they wish to play instead of catering to the teeny-boppers like so many other commercial stations. Anyone interested in becoming a disk jockey should send a note to Schickele or Heifitz through campus mail which should include preferred times and a description of the show. Once fully operative with a complete schedule, WXBC could serve as an entertaining and informative fixture of the Bard experience. Broadcasting "information" campus news can be delivered in a more immediate fashion, and students could be entertained without commercials simply by plugging in their stereo and tuning in to 540 AM. As See expressed in conclusion, "It is encouraging to see that Bard can be something other than apathetic. Bear with us. When the station is in full swing, we'll be able to see the diversity of this campus in one of the most creative and informative media possible."

Meet the mighty

Students can express their views about the college during informal lunch with three administrators each month. Dean of Students Shelley Morgan, Dean of the College Stuart Levine, and Vice President of the College Dimitri Papadimitriou will be eating in the Kline Committee Rooms with students on September 25 at 1:00 p.m. Dorm locks will be the focus of the first meeting.

Future lunch meetings will be on Wednesday, October 9, at 12:30 p.m., Monday, November 11, at 12:30 p.m., and Friday, December 6, at 12:30 p.m.

¡HAPPY BIRTHDAY MAXIM!

by Greg Giacco

On Thursday, September 12, at 11:55 p.m. a little seven pound, three ounce bundle of joy was brought to the family of President Boitstein. At that time, Barbara Haskell gave birth to President Boitstein's first son in Mount Sinai hospital.

Maxim Haskell-Boitstein was named after Leon Boitstein's grandfather and will be joining two sisters in the Botstein household. Botstein's wife and children live in New York City.

Informational meeting re: Dr. Carol Nackenoff's tenure will be held Wednesday, 8:00 p.m. in Kline

Don't drive drunk
Call Saferides ext. 460
Thur., Fri, Sat., 10p.m.-2a.m.

24 HOUR BANKING

First Rhinebeck
First National Bank of Rhinebeck

YOU CAN USE:
SMART 24 / DISCOVER
EXPRESS CASH / VISA
NTCE / CASHERE / PLUS

RNHEBECI 20 Mill St. 876-7041
RED HOOK RL 9 South 798-8811

BARD COLLEGE LOCATION
OUR SMART 24 ATM IS CONVENIENTLY LOCATED IN THE STUDENT CENTER
by Epher Glenn Carter

I’m trying to tell those readers wearing Doc Martens for that militant activist in-your-face couture, a whistle for those over-passion British, carrying a condom or dental dam for that wanton safe-sex close encounter, sporting a tattoo and/or body piercing and/or shaved head, work that
Out-Loud-and-Proud attitude with "Fuck you" on the tip of the tongue, groov’n to

Lovechild from the House of “Over-and-Overness,

The slutty boy in the sweaty chastity belt.

The Boy Scout who loves to “camp,”

The rhetorical oracle,

Positively homoerotic,

ABSOLUTELY queer!

S&M is sadomasochism, or sensory deprivation and mindfucking at Bard.
And here’s a flowchart of Bard’s sexual politics:
1) The closet; The clothes hamper (and hindrance) of society for all our dirty laundry and hand-me-downs, not to be al in public but dry cleaned in hot air and dispersed into thin air.
2) Heterophobes: The physically, emotionally, and historically ignorant -igno being the lowest common denomin ator of the people, and their power.
3) Homosexuals: Characteristically “homophobic” and a constant textbook threat to themselves and others -to us all.
4) Heterophobes: The phase in which you don’t front, In which your conscious ess just can’t stand to be raised around stupid, annoying, screwed-up, upright breeders but rather reared in a gender friendly zone.
5) By/Sex/You/Al/It ("ex")
6) Gay men and Lesbians: Unidentifi upwardly mobile" objects, with no movi parts, dreaming of the grandeur of assimilation -trying to pass or impre According to the limited per ceptions of the culturally illiterate who have forgotten Stonewall, 1969, and the American Psychiatric Association note that "homosexuality is not a “psychiatric di 1973 (as if we need their okay)."
7) Fags and Dykes: Those of us who have take away the stick by the pointed (poi and beaten them with while shov ning the carrot down their throat. Also referred to as "butthole surfers" and "muff di

8) Queers! The "re" (as in Areth Franklin’s "...re, re, re, respect") gen eration of activists fighting for all of the above to live -not in Imaginary America -not in the New World Order -not in the Real World of imitation emotion/ One Big Happy Family -but in the Personable Po itical without feigned shock and surprise at our humanity...in my understanding.
Of course.

A fag with a straight face is like a gay with its original definition?

Dayton, Ohio, my home away from home, is one of the few cities in the nation with an anti-sexual discrimination ordinance; you can call "out" in business or pleasure and take the bastards to court if they try to fuck with you. So, I am glad to be from my city. There I have re course against hate crimes.

Here at Bard try to be aware that things may be liberal -and maybe it isn’t you personally perceive in the status quo-but this campus still has a few mysterious hang-

Another

T-shirt front: Is it a boy or a girl?
back: ...it’s a queen! it’s a dyke.

This is no holds Bar'd, Where That Girl is! Where The Boy-Most-Like-To-Is!
abounding from abroad, domestic and domineering, girly-girls and gogo boys, efflores and deadlocks; whether you believe in phone sex or TV dinners, the antichord or the afterlife, whether you think of God in drag or Jesus on drugs, whether you believe in love or rely on the rhythm method, whether you keep plastic in your wallet or latex, this is your place of resi tance. It’s a "snap!" (no shade intended).

And it’s just my opinion -not queer or peer pressure- but it is the bisexual community. It comes as no great surprise since we all know how incestuous our campus is. We’re all learning that sexism is not an either/or experience. Be aware: Disease can spread here like wild fire; Jungle fever, cabin fever, sleeping sickness, lues hysteria, alcoholism -not to mention STD’s. So what’s our unspeakable prac	ice, your unnatural act, natural in duction or artificial prolegeny, you are not alone at Bard (or anywhere else actu ally)... (Oh, I don’t advocate "outing," unless of course I have to get you "out" of my way.)

A year without Ménage A Trois
...is like a day without art

BBLAG: Bard bisexuals, Lesbians, and Gays...and their Admirers; We’re here, We’re queer! Get out and get over yourself! Whatever your orientation -constellation-divination, I don’t care what you are as long as you have your shit together. Whether you’re one of the Two-Sprited or Thunder People described by the Native Americans, bi sexual lesbian, a celibate virgin, macho slut or retro femme, male femi or male impersonator, Sappho or De Sade, Latino, Black, Like or Asian fag, Earth Goddess or mountain man, Schwul, Lesbich, or Khush, queen, queer or un Anoher day, new agenda is safe-sex - safer sexuality -safety from sexual ha rassment and an eventual safari into the jungle out there ("snaps").

A page of unedited observations from guest writers.
Confirmation process questioned

by Jennifer Reck

Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas could have offered the following in response to the demand that he express his stance on the abortion issue:

"Gentlemen, your task as a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee is to determine whether or not I would make a competent member of the Supreme Court. Demanding that I formulate and express an opinion on an issue such as abortion is not in the best interest of your task. Demanding an answer to the abortion issue is a test as to whether or not I would decide in accordance with your own opinions rather than a test of my competence as a judge. In fact, in this situation I think that the only response that would rightfully make you question my competence as a judge would be if I did, in fact, offer an answer to this question, as reserving one’s opinion until all of the partic-ulars of a certain case have been weighed is of the utmost importance in making a responsibly unbiased decision.”

All of us have at least some special interest in how nominee Judge Clarence Thomas would rule on issues such as abortion and affirmative action. As a woman, I admit that I would prefer to know without question that Thomas would rule in favor of abortion, yet I also wonder about the cost of such an assurance. Must nominees be pressed until they supply the ‘right’ answer in order to be confirmed? Are we, perhaps, acting against our own best interests by demanding that nominees make decisions on the most challenging issues before they are presented with a particular case, even before they are confirmed? Do we want our Supreme Court to be puppets of popular opinion rather than a group of impartial judges? Unfortunately, our confirmation process appears to be one that seeks nominees who will vote correctly, i.e., ones that will vote in accordance with committee members’ opinions.

Perhaps it is due to the extremely personal nature of issues such as abortion and affirmative action, and their potential to impact the life of an individual so intensely, that we are so eager to make sure that only those with predetermined, acceptable decisions are confirmed. This desire is certainly understandable, though nonetheless remains an unfortunate and damaging misapplication of the judicial system.

by Andrew Yoon

The white liberal media has mounted an attack against the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court. And in the process, they have used misinformed about the apathetic American public into opposing his nomination. So here are some facts.

Mr. Thomas opposes affirmative action if it means quotas or preferences. But he does support, according to The New York Times, efforts to seek out and enlist fully qualified minorities. He also believes in the principle of self-help. Self-help has been a part of African-American nationalism from the time of Marcus Garvey to Malcolm X. And it has been used today by such people as Benjamin Hooks, the president of the NAACP, and Jesse Jackson.

The problem with affirmative action is that it is doing nothing to solve underlying racism in this country. And a beneficiary of affirmative action will always be seen as just that. A person’s rise in power is not due to achievements but to the color of their skin.

Mr. Thomas’ belief in natural law does not necessarily mean that he will vote to overturn Roe v. Wade. Natural law is a broad and ambiguous term that has been used by liberals and conservatives alike to justify their respective beliefs. Most people will agree that there are some moral laws written in the Constitution. Otherwise, they would be strict constitutionalis and Robert Bork would be in the Supreme Court. Although he did not come right out and give his opinion on abortion during his confirmation hearings, Mr. Thomas did say that he believed in a person’s right to privacy, and that is the key argument for a woman’s right to control her own body.

David Souter, who happens to be white, was confirmed to the Supreme Court with little opposition. In the past year, he voted to restrict federally funded health clinics from providing information on abortion. He will almost definitely vote to overturn Roe v. Wade. Yet, no one was set up in Kline Commons to oppose his nomination. Clarence Thomas, who happens to be black, has not publicly stated his opinion on abortion. He is clearly more qualified than Mr. Souter, as evidenced by his number of writings and opinions. Do not give Mr. Thomas special treatment for being black. Just give him an equal chance.

Why right is wrong

by Matt Apple

I consider myself a pretty open-minded, accepting, liberal kind of guy. That’s why I decided to come to Bard, the college where everything is accepted and you can say whatever you want.

Then I actually came here and was educated in the true meaning of “open-mindedness”: wholeheartedly accepting another’s political belief as long as it is the same belief as yours. For example, take the “Sound Your Voice Now” letter drive in Kline this past week against Clarence Thomas’ nomination as Supreme Court Justice. As I am open-minded, I am naturally curious about all sorts of trouble-making campaigns like that. The “facts” about Clarence Thomas immediately convinced me I had yet again misunderstood the word open-minded. Probably the most interesting fact about Thomas was “He is extremely conservative.” What a shocker. How in the world could a conservative President possibly nominate a conservative judge? If Thomas is rejected, does anyone expect Bush to say, “Gee, I better find the most liberal, open-minded, pro-choice, free-thinker I can find”?

But, I forget that I am at Bard, where heaven forbid you be less open-minded than some perfect people and don’t believe what they do, because if you’re a conservative, pro-life, anti-individual, minority-hating, fascist, wealthy, poor-excuse for-a-human-being-who-is-so-nar-minded he won’t-to-exactly-say-say kind of person, we just can’t accept you around here. You better just go to Dartmouth, or something.

I have an idea of my very own (for once). Why don’t we tell everybody how competent Thomas really is as a judge and let them decide by their very ownwelves, without any help, whether Thomas should be nominated?

Sorry, I forgot again. If people knew Thomas is opposed to affirmative action because he believes it makes minorities completely dependent on the government for their entire lives, people might not oppose Thomas like we more-open-minded-than-thous want them to. And what if we make it look like being a conservative is all right? Bard could become a haven for future Clarence Thomases!

What a horrendous thought - no more Keggers or Coalition for Choice!

Take this as a warning, all you close-minded people out there. Because, as we all know, at Bard the right way is always the wrong way, if you catch my drift.

The Beer Column

Sorry about the delay on the column, but Finnegans and the phantom are back for what is sure to be a year of consumption of prized elixirs, beer. And not just beer but Ale, stout and the rest. Anyway, our rankings are the same as last year - we rate each beer between 0-4 depending on how many 6-packs we would buy. This week, The Beers Of England. The Phantom speaks:

"Of the 4 beers that were testing tonight, three are affiliated with major breweries. Surprising to some, Watney’s Red Barrel is the one that is not. In England it is actually difficult to find a Watney, but here it is not, which is good, for it resembles many “English” beers. Bass Ale is a similar situation. Through its affiliation with a Major Brewery the American version is quite different from the English version. Whitbread Ale is excellent as it is, the true English Ale. It packs a horrid punch but is full-throated, and its taste may throw you off, though, in 200 controversy, this dwarf version, now served at the TapHouse is lighter and easier to handle. John Courage Amber Lager, though my personal favorite, is much like high-quality domestic dark beers or lagers.

Finnegans Yells: I’ll be short and sweet. We all know Bass, and if you don’t, get to ’cause you’missed out. Whitbread is real interesting. If you’re a connaisseur/euse or an adventurous/er, by all means, try some. If you’re less so, try it at the TapHouse. John Courage and Watney’s are similar because of a weird reversal in tastes. Watney’s is definitely a beer, but is much better than Courage, which is far smoother than Watney’s, but is clearly a lager. Go figure..."
An abundance of riches

by Peter M. Boriskin

On Saturday, September 14, I had the pleasure of traveling down the Hudson on the M/V Rip Van Winkle to the historic Rondout II lighthouse. The vessel, which left from the Rondout waterfront, was the M/V Rip Van Winkle, piloted by Capt. Gerard Henne. At one point, the old offshore drilling platform was used by the navy, as a ferry in New London, and in September 1985, it became the historic Hudson River area.

Says Joe Aiello, one of the RVW’s “elite” crew members, “Working here, I’ve learned a little something... Rondout Creek out in the Hudson, offering the recently restored Rhinecliff landing, and the ‘Illustrious’ Rhinecliff Hotel. Once out in the Hudson, the boat traveled north and then headed for the Rondout II lighthouse. Getting there, however, was not an easy task as the water was at extreme high tide and the dock only inches from the waterline. However, under the keen eye and steady hand of Capt. Henne, the large vessel guided to a hail alongside the lighthouse, and we were able to disembark without a problem. At the lighthouse to greet passengers was the Maritime’s events coordinator, Jeannie Kelley.

In 19 years, I’ve seen Rondout evolve from a dump to a budding town with three galleries and three tour ships.

-Bob Heggies, Rip Van Winkle crew member

There were winos (red, white and black) from Rivendell Winery in New Paltz, as well as a variety of cheeses and breads. After the lighthouse along the “widow’s walk,” one can get a panoramic view of the Hudson with the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge.

The Rondout II lighthouse was built in 1913, was a family lighthouse, used to guide boats around the precarious jetties. The lighthouse was automated in 1954 and has only recently seen the light of restoration. The museum is attempting to obtain all the old furniture and to redecorate the lighthouse in a way that it looked 78 years ago. On the return voyage, I was able to see the shimmering Hudson at night. We then entered Rondout Creek, by way of careful manipulation of the ship through the jetties.

Future projects include the “An Abundance of Riches” exhibit at the waterfront location of the Maritime Museum in Kingston, the “Shad Festival,” the “Pumpkin Festival,” and the “Apple Festival,” as well as plans to turn the lighthouse into “a bed and breakfast at sea.” For more information about the Hudson River Maritime Center, call 338-0071.
Pinocchio Alive

by Jonathan Miller

Back in the seventies a writer named Phillip Jose Farmer produced a book called Tarzan Alive, with a very similar premise to mine: life. With his calm, biographical style, Farmer produced a pastiche of serious biography that left you half-believing that Tarzan was a person who lived. Robert Coover, the author of Gerald’s Party, has followed the same possibilities for another fanciful figure with his new book Pinocchio in Venice. What if Pinocchio actually lived? What would his life have been like after becoming a real boy? What would become of him as he grew old?

Coover more or less ignores the sappy Walt Disney version of Pinocchio, and bases his book around the original Carlo Collodi novel for children. Before Disney (the Anti-Christ of children’s literature) got his chance to neuter it, Pinocchio was a powerful story about virtue, and the lack of it. Like C.S. Lewis’ Narnia series, Carlo Collodi’s book had overpowering Christian metaphors running through it - the Heaven of being a real boy, the Hell of Pleasure Island, and the unfulfilling Earth of being a self-mobile puppet. Pinocchio wasn’t just a moderately disobedient child running away from home, he was a vicious little bastard who beat up Geppetto, threw rocks at the Blue-Haired Fairy and despised to stay in the Monstro Whale’s stomach for the rest of his life. (Which, guessing at whales’ digestive processes, would have been about 12 hours.) In Coover’s book, the errant boy-puppet has grown up to be a Professor Emeritus, an old man with a nearly completed novel, who has come to Venice seeking a final metaphor to finish his magnum opus. In Collodi’s novel, being “good” was symbolized by going to school - it was through “being good” that Pinocchio could stay out of danger and become a real boy. The grownup puppet has embraced academia fully, yet he is still victimized, exploited and left penniless on the streets. Tracing back his childhood adventures, Pinocchio rediscovers the site of Pleasure Island (now turned into condoms), the faithful puppet Alidoro (now a half-blind police dog) and the puppets he once performed with in the show (now playing in a neo-psychedelic alternative band). There is no joy in the reunion, however. Pinocchio is regressing. After almost a hundred years of being a real boy, Pinocchio is turning back into a puppet.

Of course this isn’t what the book is really about. Coover would have his post-modernist license taken away if it was. He bobs-hops into the joys of language: playfully using colorful Italian phrases, slipping in exquisite academic puns, wrapping his actions in layers of lingual guaze until it becomes hard to tell what’s going on.

Streamlets of subtext flow into the proceedings. Coover takes on some daunting questions as to what being human is. The promise that the Blue-Haired Fairy made to Pinocchio was, that if he was good, he would be a real boy - a living person. Comparing Professor Pinocchio’s scholarly life in America and his wild adventures in Venice pointedly contrasts ivory tower drudgery with actually being alive. Taking Collodi’s pilgrim-on-a-quest-for-virtue, and putting him in the post-modern world where right and wrong are interchangeable starts raising prickly questions about what being virtuous is (albeit ones that have been raised before.)

The one area Coover seems to fail in is maintaining a sense of interest into the book. Lyrical writing and soft-focus description only gets one so far, and after the first hundred pages or so, the book gets swallowed in the same deadening ennui that nearly engulfed his far superior Gerald’s Party. In the effusively lyrical description of location and scene, the actual sense of things happening gets lost. The revelation that Pinocchio is turning back into a puppet should have been jolting climax, yet it is breezed by in an off-hand manner, that makes it easy to miss. His prose gets so hot and bothered with itself that the inherent sense of excitement is lost. Coover knows a lot about art, but he doesn’t know what he likes.

Still, Pinocchio in Venice has undeniable rewards. Coover paints in the electric colors of the Italian language, freely translating loose phrases and bits of business. Paying careful enough attention reveals outrageously funny bits and cracks that wallpaper the solemn salon of Coover’s philosophy, the twisted hallways of his social and political satire. Anyone who’s ever wondered about how sweet and innocent a bad little puppet can be should take the time to explore Pinocchio in Venice.

(Pinocchio in Venice © 1991 by Robert Coover is published by The Linden Press for $19.95 and is available in the bookstore.)

Art to expand awareness

by Susan Goedel

In the fall of 1989, the Board of Directors of the Dutchess County Arts Council collaborated on a way to both get the people of the county more involved in the arts and to "recognize the achievement of people of various minority ethnicities, creeds, physical capabilities, ages, and sexual orientation." After exploring several different options for six months, the Board of Directors instituted the Special Constituency Art and Community Award. Sherrie Wesley, Executive Director of the Arts Council, said of the program that it was "a new, exciting, important way to involve diverse peoples in the arts community".

The Special Constituency Award for 1992, the first year of the program, will go to an African-American person or group, but the minority eligible for the award will rotate on a yearly basis. The recipient must have exhibited artistic achievement as shown by the application form, a resume, and either an audiocassette, videotape, slides, or a manuscript. Eligibility is also contingent upon residency in Dutchess County for two years prior to applying. The deadline for application is September 20, 1991.

Along with the recognition involved with such an award, $5000 is available. The first payment comes after a public service activity. Through the public service, the people of the county benefit, as well as the artist. Ms. Wesley stated that the public service is "an integral part of the award."

Depending on the nature of the artist receiving the award, the service can take any form from painting a mural to a performance or writing workshop and can last anywhere from a few months to a few days. The awards ceremony will be a dinner, and will take place on Tuesday, October 15.

Ms. Wesley encouraged all Bard students eligible to apply for the award, and if not eligible to become involved with the Dutchess County arts community in another way, such as, the upcoming Artscape. Artscape, a visual arts show, will be held in Poughkeepsie, and will involve individuals from several different schools and communities. It will take place on October 11 and 12, with a performance for the Dutchess County Arts Fund on the twelfth.
Blazers just warming up
by Matt Apple

Both Blazer soccer teams were only cooking on the back burners for the first week of play – the defense was hot, but the offense was still warming up. Between two shutouts by Drew and New Palitz, the women's soccer team beat the King's College at Dietz Stadium 3 - 2, thanks to Deirdre Mahoney's winning goal with less than three minutes to play.

After winning their season opener 2-1 on a second half goal by first-year student Javier Salinas, the men's soccer team lost their next three games by very close scores of 3 - 1, 1 - 0, and 1 - 0.

The women's volleyball team, on the other hand, kept a perfect record at 3 wins and no losses under new coach, Kris Hall. They swept past King's College and Bloomsfield, winning three straight games in each match, and defeated Stevens' Institute in a close fourth and deciding game. 11-15, 15-7, 15-9, and 16 - 14.

Women's tennis on its way
by Laurie Curry

In terms of numbers and the coachmanship of fabulous Fred Feldman, this year's women's tennis team has the potential to go somewhere. The eleven member team gives Bard the desperately needed depth of past seasons. Christa Shute, team captain, and Olivia Schoeller are among returning players. The team challenged New Jersey Institute of Technology last Saturday. It secured three wins, and Coach Feldman felt "very optimistic" about the improvement of the players from just one week of practice together. The women's tennis team plays Albertus Magnus College this Saturday (home court) at 2 p.m.

Play Ultimate Frisbee every Monday and Wednesday at 4pm behind Kline Commons.

Sports schedules:

Women's Tennis
21 Sat. Albertus Magnus College home 2 pm
25 Wed. at Russell Sage 4 pm

Women's Volleyball
19 Thurs. at Russell Sage 6:30 pm
20 Fri. St. Joseph's College home 7 pm
21 Sat. Vassar Invitational Tournament 10 am

Men's Soccer
21 Sat. Dominican College at Rhinebeck High School 2 pm
25 Wed. Albertus Magnus College at Rhinebeck High School 4 pm

Women's Soccer
Sat 21 & Sun 22 Wells College Tournament
26 Thurs. at Southern Vermont College 4 pm

Cross Country
21 Sat. The King's Invitational

If you depend on your computer to be more than a word processor, graduating to a NeXTstation computer may be the smoothest course you ever take.

While we can't promise a NeXTstation will carry you all the way through college, we can promise it will carry you all the way through college.

GRADUATE IN OCTOBER.

That's because no other desktop computer offers or supports a full suite of word processing features to bring to such a wide range of research, analysis, report writing, and problem solving tasks. Features like a high-performance 15 MHz CPU, a minimum of 8 MB of RAM and 160 MB of hard disk storage, a full UNIX operating system, true multitasking, 3D graphics, and built-in EtherTalk networking.

And as an off-desktop computer surpasses the more powerful and complex Macintosh and IBM compatible computers.

With the right software, it's all the computer any college student needs.

And between August 15 and October 31, we'll make acquiring the right software practically painless.

Buy any NeXT CPU between now and then and get MacWrite, the premiere word processing software, R-Term, the AT-class RS-232 interface, and Diagram III, the powerful drawing and diagramming package, for less than $500. That's nearly $1400 worth of the most popular productivity tools available for less than $100 bucks. All software is included with your new machine.

What's more, graduating to a NeXT computer doesn't require a lot of paperwork. Just come to a campus retailer.

To test drive a NeXT Computer, come to Kline Commons, College and Committee room, on Wednesday, September 29th between the hours of 11:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m. Call Bonnie Gilman at 758-7468 or Doug Peters at 617-680-8848 for details.

Classifieds and Personals

Scholarship Money: Are you a Lefty? An Ex-Paper Carrier? There are Thousands of little known general scholarships, grants, and fellowships for which YOU might be eligible. The search fee ($55) will be discounted to $40 for Bardians (and children of Alumni, etc.) Send a SASE (no money due) to Old Frog Ltd. PO Box 188, Hicksville, NY 11801-0188 for more information. Campus rep wanted.

Volunteer Babysitters are needed so local men and women can take classes to get their GED. If you are interested in volunteering at the Community Action Agency in Red Hook on Tuesday or Thursday from 9:00 a.m. until noon, please contact Stephanie D'opson through campus mail.

Did you lose a watch? I found one on the last day of the spring semester on the trail between Cruger & Gym. Contact Box 64

Toyota SR-Corolla, sports coup 1986 5 speed excellent condition, 62,000 miles. Call 914-758-9952 after 5 p.m. and weekends. Asking $2500.00.

I'm looking for a good tennis player to hit with this fall. If available, please call Isaac, 758-3820.

Mon. - I'm glad we settled our differences - Celeste P.S. Put that message in your message.

Susannah - a kinder gentler roommate.

L.B.: Have you read any good books lately? - Lytle Lytle: Not in English - L.B.

Wallet lost Friday night. If found, please send to Josh Hasworth through campus mail or call 757-4212. Reward.
IBM PS/2
Collegiate Tour

Join us...

Fun, food, and freebies. All on IBM. See how the IBM Personal System/2® Selected Academic Solutions work for you. Ask about special student prices and affordable loan payments.* Don’t miss the IBM PS/2® Collegiate Tour on your campus.

COME SEE THE IBM PS/2's AT THE IBM COLLEGIATE TOUR FAIR
Wednesday September 18th
11am - 2pm
KLINE COMMONS
College & Committee Rooms
For more information, contact
Bonnie Gilman, Director of Henderson Computer Center Ext 496

* This offer is available to qualified college students, faculty and staff that purchase IBM Selected Academic Solutions through participating campus outlets. IBM 1 800 222-7257 or IBM Authorized PC Dealers certified to remarket IBM Selected Academic Solutions. Offers are subject to availability. Prices are subject to change and IBM may withdraw this offer at any time without notice. IBM, Personal System/2, PS/2 are registered trademarks of International Business Machines Corporation. ©IBM Corporation 1991
Public access:
Rights and responsibilities
by Kristan Hutchinson

The Board of Trustees has the final say over the college and therefore students have a right to give them input. Only the Trustees have the power to hire, fire, or reprimand the president of the college. They are the final appeal for all cases which begin in the Student Conduct Board, Sexual Harassment Board, or Grievance Committee. They are also the last ditch appeal on tenure cases, such as the recent Necundso case, which the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees denied a hearing.

Currently the list of appeals for the Board of Trustees is kept in Leon Botstein's office. The list is not made fully available to all the other administrators in Laddow, let alone the students. The explanation for this, according to Botstein's secretary, is that "Somebody here likes to have some say about what is written to the trustees." Students wishing to contact the Trustees are expected to deliver the letter to Botstein's office to be passed on to the trustee's. Though two student representatives sit in on some part of Board of Trustee meetings, they are briefed by Botstein in his office beforehand and so to what subjects are or are not appropriate to speak about. Some of us at the Observer believe that students' should be able to directly contact trustees, without intermediaries. U.S. citizens can write their representatives directly and public colleges make public their trustees. Some colleges even have a regular voting trustee elected by the students. Therefore, we have printed the addresses of the trustees below.

We do this with some trepidation and would advise that the newly discovered access be used responsibly. Though they have the final say, trustees should also be a last resort. They are not involved in the details of the college and should only be approached after other avenues have been exhausted. Most certainly, it would be ill taste to approach them for money for clubs, etc. After all, they give enough at the office.

The administration is right to be wary of what students will do with the addresses of the trustees in their hands. A great deal of harm could be done to the relationship between students and trustees in the cases where they are somehow harassed or defamed with trivial letters. On the other hand, if students use the privilege to address serious concerns to the trustees, to sometimes think them for helping out the college, and perhaps keep them informed of events from a student perspective, then ties between students and trustees could grow stronger. (The Observer is currently delivered to the trustees every week and thus campus news reaches them already.)

We understand that the administration yet students to act responsibly. Don't prove us wrong.

BARD COLLEGE BOARD OF TRUSTEES JULY 1990

David E. Schwab '52
Chairman
68 Cedar Drive
Briarcliff Manor
NY 10510

Asher B. Edelman '61
Vice Chairman
81 East End Avenue
New York, NY 10028

Robert B. Strasser 2nd Vice Chairman
267 Kent Street, #6
Brooklyn, MA 01246

Hart Perry Treasurer
"Southwood," Wonds Road
Germantown, NY 12526

John C. Honey '39
Secretary
34 South Street
Rhinebeck, NY 12572

Peter C. Aldrich 151 Coolidge Hill
Cambridge, MA 02138

Marie Luise Black
720 Park Avenue
New York, NY 10021

Richard B. Black KBA Partners, L.P.
Parker Plaza
400 Kelby Street
Fort Lee, NJ 07024

Elizabeth B. Hodgett Hall
60 Sinyo's Rock of Bard
Great Barrington, MA 01230

Martin Peretz
20 Larchwood Drive
Cambridge, MA 02138

Ernest F. Henderson III
171 Edmunds Rd.
Wellesley Hills, MA 02181

Stanley Reichel
16 Belvedere Drive
Livingston, NJ 07039

Mark N. Kaplan
46 Central Park West
New York, NY 10023

William F. Reger Jr.
4 Langley Lane
Old Westbury, NY 11568

Leon Levy
One Sutton Place South
New York, NY 10021

Michael Edward Schultz
125 East 72nd Street
New York, NY 10021

Murray Liebowitz
80 Compass Drive
Fl. Lauderdale, FL 33308

Charles F. Stevenson Jr.
720 Park Avenue
New York, NY 10021

Robert F. Maguire III
1076 Corsica Drive
Pacific Palisades, CA 90222

James McEntee
40 East 91st Street
New York, NY 10028

Patricia Ross Weisz '52
1100 Greene Street
Sunbury, PA 17801

Jerry O. Williams
Mulberry House
Waterhouse Lane
Kingswood, Surrey KT6 6HU

Paul Jr. Moore
1047 Amsterdam Avenue
New York, NY 10025

Paul W. Williams
12445 Plantation Lane
Seminole Landing
North Palm Beach, FL 33408

 observes
Nackenoff deserved tenure

Dear Editor,

We, the Educational Policies Committee, wish to make clear our concern about the recent denial of tenure to Professor Carol Nackenoff. Our conclusions rest on the student testimony that resulted in a substantial student response, all of which demonstrated overwhelming support for the granting of tenure to Professor Nackenoff. She is clearly respected as a fine instructor whose diligence, concern for students, and contributions to the college community establish her as exactly the type of professor one expects to find at Bard, an institution committed to close student-faculty relations and independent thinking.

Further, the EPC has recently considered the Criteria for Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion found in the Faculty Handbook. We fail to see how the decision to deny Carol Nackenoff tenure is justified by these rules. The first area, teaching, is judged to be the most important, and her excellence in this area has not been questioned. The document also states that the teachers should have demonstrated accomplishment in each of the four areas. The reason for the denial of tenure, as we understand it, is Prof. Nackenoff's failure to meet expected accomplishments in her discipline. We feel we must question whether her work has been fairly criticized. The most prominent critics of her manuscript are not political scientists, and we feel that a fair judgment of Prof. Nackenoff's work can be made only by those within her discipline. As indicated in last week's Observer, she has already received an extremely favorable review from an outside evaluator in the field of political science, and we do not understand why this was not viewed as sufficient evidence of her accomplishments. This evaluator is not seen as an acceptable authority, despite the fact that he was selected by the Faculty Evaluation Committee, then suitable authorities should be sought from her own discipline for a complete assessment of her work.

It is our opinion that Carol Nackenoff is a teacher of the finest quality; the EPC knows this from its own research. The EPC has determined that she has met the requirements of each of the four areas. We urge you [Botstein] to reconsider this decision before Bard College loses a source of the great teaching it so highly values.

The Educational Policies Committee
Melissa Cahoon, Chair
c/c President Botstein

Who's silenced now?

Dear Editor,

In regard to the lawsuit pending against Bard College, Bard president Leon Botstein, and a male student (referred to as "Jim") in Bard Observer articles relating to the case, I would like to make three points.

First, I was surprised to read in the August 28 editions of both the Poestenkill Journal and the Daily Freeman that, according to Pam Lippakos, the attorney representing the alleged assault victim, both students were expected to return to campus this week. As far as I know this is simply untrue: as the Observer reported last May during the student protest, the male student hasn't chosen to continue his studies elsewhere.

Second, there was an incident last spring related to the case that has been completely absent from the press coverage. An article in the September 4 Observer states that: "Several exceptions were made to the probation by President Leon Botstein allowing Jim to attend specific events, including a party at which his band was playing..." What is not mentioned is that the band's performance was cancelled due to anonymous telephone calls made to "Jim's" home and to the campus security office, in which harassment and even murder were threatened. I think we in the community have a right to know about death threats made by and against people we live with.

Finally, I for one don't find the Student Judiciary Board's verdict in the case totally convincing, for the simple reason that on a campus this small, I don't think any student could realistically be expected to be objective in their view of the case. A jury of one's peers is our opinion that one cannot be a jury composed of people of your economic, social, racial, sexual, or age group; it also means a jury composed of people with no personal bias in the case. I have to wonder if such a thing is possible within the Bard community, especially in regard to such a highly charged issue as sexual assault.

It seems to me that "Jim" has been run out of town on a rail. I don't know what the social, psychological and legal punishment that is being inflicted on him is supposed to accomplish, but I doubt it's productive for the individuals involved or for the community. Violence, physical or not, can only create more violence.

Sincerely,
Paul Winkler, class of 1992

Still more PC talk

Dear Editor,

It was a poor choice on the part of the Observer staff to print the chart that appeared with my letter, "Not Enough P.C. Talk." That chart was part of a handout which was returned to participants in the study. The chart is meaningless and misleading without the statistics and explanations which appeared in the rest of the handout.

I find Mr. Slocomb's knowledge of my study remarkable, especially from someone who has neither read the study nor spoken with the researchers on the matter. His critiques of my procedures and hypothesis are especially astounding as he has no idea what my procedures nor my hypothesis were. I feel that Mr. Slocomb's comments reflect the extent of his expertise.

If Mr. Slocomb or anyone else has a further interest in the matter, I would invite him to contact me personally at Box 742. I am confident that the results of my study reflect the reality on Bard Campus.

Sincerely,
Linda Crow
Assistant Librarian for Cataloging

Addition to library article

Dear Editor,

In the article "Library addition unearths chaos" by Matt Apple (September 11, 1991), there were several statements attributed to me which were incorrect. I did not say that we were about fourteen years behind other college libraries in changing from the Dewey Decimal Classification System to the Library of Congress Classification System. I believe that this library started the reclassification project about fourteen years ago.

One would also get the impression from the article that the cataloging department has no work-

We welcome your letters, personals, and other pieces. Drop them in campus mail, the box in the library, the box in Kline, or at our office in Tewksbury basement. Letters should be under three hundred words to guarantee being printed quickly. All submissions should include a name and phone number.
Weekly Community Information

Humanities Endowment: Information and applications for the National Endowment of Humanities Summer Stipend are available from the Dean of the College. Deadline for submission is October 1, 1991. Each college can nominate three members of its faculty for these stipends. No more than two of these nominees may be in the early stages of their careers. That is, junior nominees - specifically, those holding the rank of Assistant Professor. The second category of nominee (Senior) are for those holding the rank of Associate or Full Professor. Please stop by the Dean’s office for further information.

Speaker for Peace
The International Peacemaker, The Reverend Norman Bent, will be at Pleasant Plains Presbyterian Church, Sunday, Sept. 29th, 1991. He has served as a mediator during the crisis between the government and the East Coast Miskito people. Now pastor of the Moravian Church in Managua, he is serving as an International Peacemaker for the USA Presbyterian Church as well. Norman Bent will lead worship and preach at 9:30 a.m. at the church. He will speak again at 11:00 a.m. at a public forum on the topic of Nicaragua and the need for peace in Central America. Pleasant Plains Church is located on Hollow Road -7 miles north of Hyde Park off Route 9-G. Everyone is welcome. For more information, please call the Church at 869-4019.

Observer Meetings
There will be a meeting for writers on Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Aspinwall, third floor. Those interested in layout should meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the basement of Towsbury. The deadline for outside submissions is Friday at 5:00 p.m. Turn material in to the Observer office.

Join in the Dance
Take part in Scottish Country Dancing - traditional social dances of Scotland. There will be an introductory dance party in the Student Center (Old Gym) at Bard from 7:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 7th. You don’t need to bring a partner, you don’t need to have experience, and you don’t have to be Scottish to enjoy the dancing...but please wear soft-soled shoes if you have them; ballet shoes or moccasins are ideal. A new class will begin on Sept. 18th and will meet from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. on the first, third, and fifth Wednesdays of each month (location to be announced). For more information call: #462-6056 or Marsha Kent #462-4014 Bill & Sheryl Griffith #758-8273 Samantha Miller

Madrigal Singers: Members of the Bard Community chorus are forming a madrigal group. Those interested in joining please contact Megan Hastie at Ext. 250 or Chen-Lay Ong at 758-0213. We are going to keep it a small group, so if you are interested, contact us by Sept 18th preferably. (Open to all members of the community).

Meditation and Discussion: There will be a Meditation and Discussion on Sunday evenings in the Chapel at 6:00 p.m. Office hours for Ginger Grab, assistant to the Chaplain, will be on Wednesdays 3:45 - 5:45.

Services for Christian Students:

Sundays:
8:30 am: Ecumenical Service, Bard Chapel
9:30: Van to St. John’s Episcopal Church and St. Christopher’s Catholic Church, meet at Kline parking lot.
6:00 pm: Chapel Service

Tuesdays:
7:00 pm: Singing and Worship
7:30: Bible Study/Prayer Group (Both in Bard Chapel Basement)

Thursday:
9:30 pm: Women’s Bible Study/Prayer Group
(Cruzer Village, Stephens 101)

High Density Abstraction:
An exhibition of painting by eight contemporary artists will be on view in Proctor Art Center from Sept. 13 to Oct. 15. There will be a party for the artists, with music and refreshments, Wednesday, September 25, starting at 8:00 pm. All students are invited.

African Doll Sale:
African Dolls will be sold on Wednesday, Oct. 2, and Tuesday, October 8, outside of Kline Commons.

Career Development Office:
For the next few weeks, the office will be run by knowledgeable students during the following hours:
Monday-Wednesday 1:30 to 3:30
Thursday 11:30 to 1:30

---

-CALENDAR OF EVENTS-

SEPT 19-SEPT 25

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>THURSDAY</th>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
<th>SATURDAY</th>
<th>SUNDAY</th>
<th>MONDAY</th>
<th>TUESDAY</th>
<th>WEDNESDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>9:00 pm</td>
<td>Observer Layout</td>
<td>5:00 pm</td>
<td>7:00 pm</td>
<td>8:30 am</td>
<td>8:30 pm</td>
<td>8:00 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meeting</td>
<td>Observer deadline</td>
<td>Observer Office</td>
<td>Scottish Country</td>
<td>Worship Service</td>
<td>Observer ‘writers’</td>
<td>Bard Faculty Music</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>for outside</td>
<td></td>
<td>Dancing Old Gym</td>
<td>Chapel (See Above</td>
<td>meeting Third floor</td>
<td>Concert Olin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>submission</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>For More Information</td>
<td>Aspinwall</td>
<td>Auditorium</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>and other services)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

THROUGH OCTOBER 15: HIGH DENSITY ABSTRACTION. PROCTOR ART CENTER

---